Media Release

10th August 2009

Leading economist for Committee dinner

Leading economist and commentator, Chris Richardson, Director of Access Economics, will be keynote speaker at the Committee for Ballarat's next Round Table Dinner.

He replaces Saul Eslake, former chief economist of ANZ Bank. Mr Eslake had to withdraw from his commitment to the dinner following his recent resignation from ANZ.

The dinner will be held at the Mercure Hotel on September 15.

Mr Richardson heads up Access Economics' Macroeconomic Group.

As one of Australia's leading macroeconomists, Mr Richardson's expertise includes the Australian and global economies, Federal budget analysis, and property, ageing and industry trends.

He is the author of Business Outlook, the Business Review Weekly's Fundamentals column, and is often asked to comment on economic trends in wider media.

Access Economics is one of Australia's leading economic consulting firms, providing expert economic advice to business, government, industry groups and not-for-profit organisations.

Inquiries regarding attendance at the dinners should be directed to the Committee offices on (03) 5332.1240 or by email at admin@committeeforballarat.com
